Digital Terrestrial Television Action Group

Statutes

Whereas,

1. the future technology of terrestrial TV services will be all-digital;
2. the use of digital technology for terrestrial broadcasting may offer, in addition to its intrinsic benefits including flexibility, portability and interactivity, others derived from the highly efficient use of scarce spectrum resources;
3. the transport, distribution and broadcasting infrastructures of digital terrestrial TV services may offer opportunities for the development of wireless data delivery services in the wider sense of multimedia services;
4. the introduction and the development of digital terrestrial television services in an appropriate time-frame requires the close co-operation and full co-ordination of all sectors of the business (service providers and network operators, broadcasting regulators and spectrum administrators, and integrated circuit, equipment and consumer product manufacturers);
5. actions towards implementing and introducing digital terrestrial services, were begun separately by the Digital Television Group (DTG) in the UK, and in mainland Europe by the European broadcasting Union (EBU) and several national coordinating groups, and these organisations co-ordinated their international activities related to digital terrestrial television by founding this Action Group;

the undersigned, therefore, have agreed upon these Statutes establishing the Digital Terrestrial Television Action Group, an association under Articles 60 and following of the Swiss Civil Code.

Article 1 Objectives

The objectives of the Digital Terrestrial Television Action Group, hereinafter referred to as DigiTAG, shall be:

1. to create an operational framework for the harmonious and market-driven introduction of digital terrestrial television services, within the appropriate time-window of opportunity;
2. to develop an implementation reference model, including a system description for digital terrestrial receivers, for the introduction of services according to meet the needs of broadcasters and consumers;
3. to encourage the flow of information, share experiences and ensure the closest possible co-operation and synergy amongst all interested parties;
4. to seek to maximise commonality in the systems and equipment developments with those of the other broadcast delivery media (e.g. Satellite and Cable);
5 to develop a critical path analysis of the work required to meet the time-scale targets and to co-ordinate the effort needed from those involved to do so;

6 to support a non-discriminatory approach that enables an open and competitive market to developing all the relevant parts of the system including service provision, receivers and conditional access, consistent with the European Directive on Television Transmission standards;

7 to study and find optimal solutions to the transition scenarios for the addition of digital services into the analogue situation, and the subsequent migration towards the all-digital future;

8 to encourage the development of various new types of services and service features such as programme-associated and independent data services, and interactivity;

Article 2 Membership

1 Membership shall be open to broadcasters, service providers, terrestrial TV network operators, professional and consumer equipment manufacturing industry, regulatory authorities, and other organisations which endorse the objectives of DigiTAG and accepts these Statutes;

2 Signing up to these Statutes and first payment of the appropriate annual membership fee (see Article 12) shall be considered as fulfilment of the conditions for membership.

In this way DigiTAG will complement, and not duplicate, the technical and commercial work of the DVB Project. Likewise there may be exchanges of information between DigiTAG and other digital terrestrial standards development organisations.

2 The DigiTAG recognises the importance of the role of National Platforms within each country as the best means of matching the introduction of services to the specific and diverse needs of individual countries. It therefore does not seek to replace or replicate these national roles, but seeks to encourage an international application of, as much as possible, a common solution to maximise the resulting economies of scale.
